Languages

The following ethnic groups live in Singapore: Chinese (74.3%), Malays (13.4%), Indians (9.0%), others (3.2%). The official languages of Singapore are English, Singaporean Mandarin (Xīnjiāpō Huáyǔ), Malay and Tamil. English is the language of everyday communication and is understood by everyone. As a rule, even local brokers, for whom Singapore is the main market, use English to communicate with clients (advertising, social networks). The second language on brokers' websites is Singaporean Mandarin (Xīnjiāpō Huáyǔ).

Also citizens of neighboring Malaysia and Indonesia live and work in Singapore, whose native languages are Malay and Indonesian. Therefore, for customers from Singapore, we recommend providing all 4 languages on the site - English, Singaporean Mandarin, Malay and Indonesian. English can be used for advertising, but if the advertisement targets to Malays and Indonesians, then advertising in Malay and Indonesian must be used for these target groups.

Payments

Depositing trading account via bank transfer from a bank account in Singapore is the traditional method for clients from Singapore, as large international brokers provide only this method for replenishments, and it is familiar to clients. Also, according to our statistics, local methods of Indonesia and Malaysia, bank transfers and e-wallets, are popular among citizens of Malaysia and Indonesia living in Singapore. Therefore, these methods must also be provided in the client area for Singapore residents.

Payments

Indonesian and Malaysian payment methods are popular among Indonesian and Malaysian citizens living in Singapore. The most popular methods by value of transactions are: Indonesian banks virtual accounts (32.1%) Malaysian banks (21.5%) Indonesian QR codes (15.9%) Indonesian/Malaysian ewallets (14.7%) Singapore banks (11.8%) Ewallets of other countries of the region (4%)

Average check for clients from Singapore is $94.3 compared to $55.8 in Indonesia and $57.7 in Malaysia. This is because Malaysian and Indonesian citizens living in Singapore have higher incomes than those in their home countries.

Forex and Binary options regulation

The Central Bank of Singapore is the Monetary Authority of Singapore or MAS, and it was founded in 1970. It is the biggest financial regulatory body, and it's the one monitoring Singapore forex trades. On top of that, it even has the authority to implement good policies in the fintech area.

Any forex or binary options broker wishing to operate physically in Singapore must be licensed by the MAS and adhere to strict codes of conduct, capital adequacy requirements and operating standards. All customer deposits must also be segregated in separate bank accounts for safety and security. MAS limits leverage for retail forex traders to 1:50.

The MAS, however, does not require that its citizens or foreign residents in Singapore only deal with one of MAS regulated brokers. Unlike its neighboring country, Indonesia, which limits retail trading to only be provided by domestic brokers, Singaporeans can freely choose to use any broker, both local and overseas. So, if trader feels unsatisfied with all of the MAS-regulated forex brokers, he could simply choose the best forex broker for him among any other forex brokers in the world. Singaporean traders are also free to choose their base currency, be it in Singaporean Dollar (SGD) or others.

Brokers are not required to report gains or losses to taxing authorities and there are no tax consequences for individual retail traders. Singapore-based forex brokers would not deduct trader's gain for tax purposes. It also needs to be noted that Singapore does not have capital gain tax. Professional traders (those individuals employed by banks and other financial entities to trade currencies as their primary job) are required to keep track of their gains and losses and then pay taxes on their net profits. There is, however, one deferment option for these tax liabilities. If these net profits are retained in accounts offshore, then there are no taxes due until the funds are transferred to a bank account maintained within Singapore. Singapore imposes a progressive resident tax rate starting at 0% for earnings up to SGD20,000 and ending at 22% for earnings above SGD320,000. Some people reckon that part-time traders may be tax-free, but full-time traders have to pay taxes.

Forex brokers in Singapore

The most popular brokers by audience are XM and local broker Poems. Together they occupy 30% of the market by audience. Other brokers popular in Singapore include Oanda, IG, Interactive Brokers and eToro. Poems is a local company with a MAS license, while international companies Oanda, IG, Interactive Brokers also have a MAS license. Singapore is not a target market for eToro. The most popular binary options broker is IQ Option, but Singapore is not a target market for him.

Other brokers with MAS license include CMC Markets, Plus500, Saxo Bank, Tiger Brokers, TD Ameritrade. They are also popular and are in the top 20 in terms of traffic from Singapore. We can confidently say that all brokers that target Singapore are licensed by the local regulator MAS.

Search trends

Top-5 brokers by search queries in Google. It is quite difficult to estimate the popularity of Poems as there are so many search results related to poetry by this keyword. But we can confidently say that this broker is very popular as its audience is significant in Singapore and this keyword is the top search query for the website poems.com.sg.

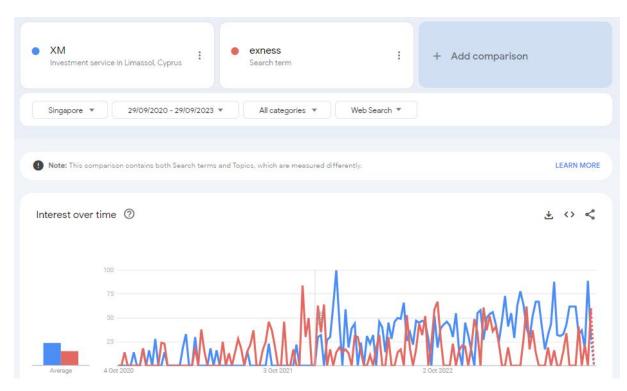

Search trends

The second five brokers in terms of popularity in search queries.

We can confidently say that forex market in Singapore is a market of regulated companies. 7 out of 10 companies popular on search queries have MAS license. Also 2 more regulated companies, CMC markets and Plus500 are in the top 12 by popularity.

Search trends

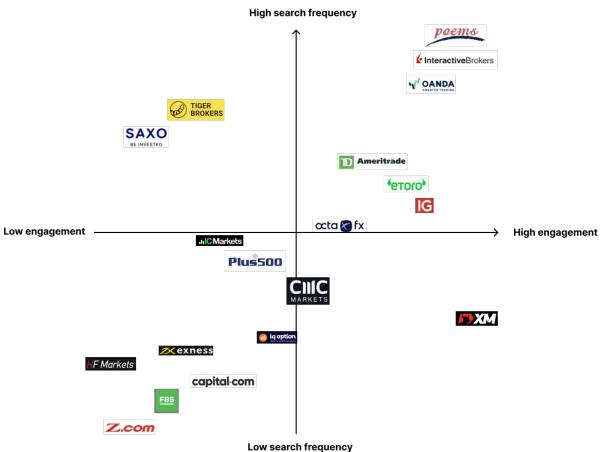

XM and Exness popularity is not very high. Rather, their audience in Singapore is likely to be traders from Malaysia and Indonesia living in Singapore, where the companies are very popular.

Large international companies without a license in Singapore do not choose Singapore as a target market because the market is very small. Traders from Singapore are more likely to choose a company with MAS license as there are many large corporations with this license.
